The New Forest National Park is going green, with visitors given a host of innovative incentives¹ to leave their cars at home and take to the countryside on foot, bikes and even horseback, says Simon Heptinstall.

5 Squirrels, butterflies and grazing ponies are not in the slightest bit afraid of bikes. I can report this fact after a beautiful sunny day's research pedalling through woodland tracks² in the lovely New Forest. I was experiencing a new type of day out in the New Forest.

I'd arrived by train at Brockenhurst station, collected a hired³ bike and rolled off on a traffic-free route through some of southern England's best countryside. It was a complete adventure – without my car.

10 It's all thanks to a pioneering project by New Forest authorities to make England's newest National Park into its greenest and cleanest destination.

This summer's impressive eco-tourism campaign includes many hotels and Bed and Breakfasts offering "car-free" discounts if you arrive by train. Many still arrive by car, of course, but reducing traffic will improve the quality of the visit for everyone.

15 And over the years, the New Forest has remained a great area for car-free adventures, thanks to its network of paths⁴ and tracks. There are now more than 150 miles of off-road gravel tracks for safe⁵ family cycling and walking. And a 40 mph speed limit on roads has made it a calmer place to cycle and to protect the animals, which roam freely.

Cycle hire companies throughout the New Forest can supply maps, advice and bikes.

20 I found cycling the perfect way to explore the Forest in a peaceful, healthy and non-polluting way.
